BIBLIOGRAPHY ON CONTEMPORARY ITALY

Preface:

As part of the preparatory work for a full-scale project investigation of contemporary Italy, I have been compiling a critical bibliography to assist project members in their research. This bibliography does not aim to be exhaustive or definitive, including every book, pamphlet, or article ever published on contemporary Italy. Rather it is a working bibliography concentrating on those works and sources of data which are particularly authoritative, informative, relevant and illuminating.

Since the emphasis of research at this time seems to be analytical in terms of present day Italy, rather than historical, the majority of works included deal mainly with recent issues. However, in many instances these issues can be understood and placed in proper perspective and relationship to the present only in terms of past developments. Anticipating such research problems the bibliography also includes works and sources which provide information on the background of such issues. To limit the chain of historical causation and relationship which can lead too far back, it was determined not to include any works -- with very few exceptions -- which limit themselves specifically to pre-1861 Italy. The date 1861 was chosen as it marks the beginning of a united Italy with its common problems and solutions.

The bibliography is divided into three main sections, listing works, alphabetically by author's name, on economic, political, social and cultural aspects of modern Italy. Each section is further subdivided into general and specialized topical sub-sections. When a work deals, for instance, with both the political and economic features of the same topic, it is cross-filed under each section. A short comment as to contents and value of individual entries is included, except in cases when it was felt to be superfluous or unnecessary.

The bulk of the bibliography consists of books and sources. Few magazine or newspaper articles are included as no systematic analysis of periodical literature -- a lengthy, time devouring task -- has been undertaken. Some articles are listed, but these are the most obvious and useful ones found in numerous citations, and easily traced and checked. However the titles of the most important periodicals are included with some indication as to their subject matter.

What follows is the first part of the economic section of the bibliography, that listing general works and sources on the Italian economy from about 1861. Next will appear the topical sub-sections on more specialized aspects of the Italian economy and then the sections on political, and social and cultural problems.

GENERAL WORKS AND SOURCES

Annali di economia, Milano, 1924-1938, 13 volumes

Economic annals prepared by the Università commerciale Luigi Bocconi of Milan. Contained articles, studies, and reports on new books in field. In 1939 merged with the Giornale degli economisti e rivista di statistica to form Giornale degli economisti e annali di economia. Useful publication.

Annali di statistica e di economia, Genova, 1933 -

Publication of the Facoltà di economia e commercio, laboratorio di scienze economiche, of the University of Genoa. Of general interest as it does not deal exclusively with Italian problems.

Annuario economico-statistico dell'Italia per l'anno 1853, Torino (1853)

One of the early year-books giving economic statistical data for Italy. Include information on agricultural and industry, population, etc.

Annuario generale d'Italia, 1886-

A "world's almanac" for Italy. Contains miscellaneous data -- economic and political -- on national and regional level. Up-to-date. Has not appeared regularly. Fifty editions so far.

Associazione bancaria italiana.

Bancaria. Monthly dealing in the problems of banking and credit.

Associazione fra le società italiane per azioni.

(This group is responsible for the publication, in Italian, English and French of various reports on Italian economic activities. During the fascist period many of these were published jointly with the Confederazione generale fascista dell'industria italiana.)

Business and Financial Reports. A monthly survey of Italian trade and industry. (Rome) Appeared 1921 - 1941

Succeeded by:

Italian Economic Survey. (Rome) Monthly publication begun in March, 1946. Informative.

Le esportazioni italiane negli anni 1911-1913 e 1923-1927, Roma, 1928.

Comparative study of Italian exports for periods 1911-1913 and 1923-1927. Mainly tables.

L'Italie au travail. Rome, 1924-1935. General information and propaganda bulletin.

Piccolo annuario statistico italiano, Roma, 1925-. Year-book appearing irregularly. Handy source of statistics on various aspects of Italian economic life.

Rivista delle società commerciali, 1911-1921, 10 volumes.
